Amin back home; was not near UK

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Radio Uganda said today President Idi Amin has returned to Uganda after a trip that apparently took him nowhere near London and the Commonwealth summit, where the Ugandan dictator earlier was reported to have secretly arrived.

The radio announced Amin's safe return after holding talks with unnamed "top revolutionary military officers" from Tanzania and Zambia on the spot where the borders of Uganda, Tanzania and Rwanda join.

The broadcast made no mention of earlier reports by the government-controlled radio that the burly dictator was in Britain.

Radio Uganda reported Tuesday that he had arrived in London demanding "to be carried shoulder-high by the British for several miles" as "part of the field marshal's celebrations of the British queen's silver jubilee."

A Foreign Office spokesman said the government, which has told Amin he is not welcome because of allegations of atrocities in his country, had no word on Amin's arrival. "If he had landed legally in this country, I would know," the spokesman added.

While Britons speculated on Amin's whereabouts, Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley today blasted the Ugandan dictator as "a cause of shame for all mankind."

In a luncheon speech to the Royal Commonwealth Society, Manley, a vehement supporter of Third World causes, accused fellow Third World leaders of a double standard for condemning "racist tyranny" in white-ruled southern Africa while ignoring Amin.

"We of the Third World rightfully unite to fight racist tyranny in southern Africa and to denounce it in its various forms," Manley said. "We should not hesitate, therefore, to denounce tyranny, whether of the tribal, military or Fascist kind, when it is found in our own ranks."

President Dawda Jawara of Gambia in West Africa admitted there is "a good deal of embarrassment" among Africans over Amin, and he was certain the subject of Uganda would be raised at the conference.

Radio Uganda reported Tuesday that Amin had left for London despite word from Prime Minister James Callaghan and other British leaders that he was not wanted at the Commonwealth meeting or the simultaneous celebrations of Queen Elizabeth's 25 years on the throne.

Later Tuesday, the Ugandan radio said Amin had stopped in an Arab country, which was assumed to be Libya. The broadcast said he would go on to France, West Germany or Ireland and would reach England Wednesday or Thursday by boat. But there has been no report of his leaving Libya or any other Arab country, and he has not been sighted in Europe.

The Nairobi Daily Nation, the leading newspaper in Kenya, Uganda's eastern neighbor, said a Ugandan army major told it the 6-foot-4, 250-pound president had been seen in the Kampala area after the government radio said he had left for London. The major was not identified.

There was growing speculation that all the official reports of Amin's trip were part of a hoax intended to twist the tail of the British lion. But British officials were taking a relaxed attitude that extended also to the announcement Wednesday that the Ugandan government had barred the 300 British residents of Uganda from leaving the country until Amin returned from London.

City and county officials got a different point of view Thursday morning as they attempted to maneuver around the downtown area in wheelchairs. ## State Fair entertainment package set

The Missouri State Fair has put together a package of super star entertainers for the 76th annual showing of the exposition this year, scheduled for Aug. 19 to 28, according to Jack Runyan, Missouri director of agriculture.

Helen Reddy will open the Fair Aug. 19, followed by a "festival of stars" on Aug. 21 featuring Ronnie Milsap, Tammy Wynette and the Statler Brothers in concert.

"We're bringing together agriculture's best for this State Fair, and it's no idle boast that this is going to be the biggest and best Fair Missouri has ever seen," Runyan said.

Charlie Pride will return to the Fair on Aug. 23 and Sedalia's own LeRoy Van Dyke will appear Aug. 25, along with comedian Jerry Clower.

On Aug. 24 an "all-Missouri" night will

Majority of budget on Teasdale's desk

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The bulk of the state's $3 billion budget has been sent to Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale for his consideration, but a major measure funding the state's building projects has been delayed.

The House and Senate gave final approval Wednesday to a package of bills providing for the state's operations for the upcoming fiscal year. The bills total $7.5 million more than Teasdale recommended last January. But it calls for spending $3.8 million less of the state's general tax revenues than the governor had recommended.

The legislature called for expenditure of more federal funds than Teasdale had.

Yet to be finalized is the $125 million capital improvements bill, which funds the state's building maintenance and construction projects for the fiscal year beginning July 1. A dispute over prisons is holding up final passage of that bill.

State officials have been concerned about the impact of rising costs and expanded state services on the general tax revenues, fearing in the past that services might have to be reduced or taxes increased. But based on calculations of legislative staffs, the state will have more than $74 million in general revenue tax funds left at the end of the new budget year in June 1978. That would be one of the highest balances since the state income tax was increased in 1971.

The bills easily cleared both the House and Senate with most opposition coming in the House over spending for higher education. Critics of the compromise version of that bill complained about legislative negotiators exceeding their authority by reducing the funds for the University of Missouri Extension Program from amounts theoretically authorized by each house.

The compromise version categorizes the University of Missouri's $136 million appropriation into four parts, as called

Highway study notes problems in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A study prepared for the state's major highway contractors says 86 per cent of Missouri's main roads and streets will wear out in the next 10 years due to increased traffic.

Robert Hunter, chief engineer for the Missouri State Highway Department, said the state would continue maintaining the roads and they would not actually "wear out." But in generally agreeing with the study, Hunter said the state needs about $140 million more than is currently available each year to keep on top of highway maintenance.

The study, conducted by the Road Information Program of Washington, D.C., for Associated General Contractors of Missouri, said that 27,000 of the state's 31,000 miles of major roads will have to be resurfaced or rebuilt by 1987.

The study, confirming figures previously gathered by the Highway Department, also said more than 700 bridges will need repairs or replacement within the same period.

Release of the study comes as an initiative petition campaign is being mounted to increase the state fuel tax from seven to 19 cents a gallon, making it one of the highest in the nation. The additional funds would generate another $60 million to $70 million a year for the state road program and provide substantial increases in funds available to counties for bridge repair or replacement.

The drive has been supported by the state Highway Commission, but Gov. Joseph Teasdale has said he strongly opposes any increase in individual taxes while he is in office. The proposal would need voter approval before becoming effective.

The study estimated that the state will have to spend nearly $175 million a year on road and bridge repair to keep highways in good condition over the next 10 years. It said that next year, however, the Highway Department plans to spend only $146 million for major road work, including new construction.

Revised formula means $197,000 aid increase

The Sedalia school system would receive an increase of $197,000 in state financial aid for the coming school year under a revised public school funding formula adopted this week by the state Legislature, Superintendent of Schools Kem Keithly said Thursday.

Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale is expected to sign the measure. He listed the bill as one of his priorities.

Had this revised formula not been approved, Keithly said, the district's state aid allocation would have been reduced by $279,000 for the coming year under the old funding formula. The district received approximately $1,866,727 for the school year that recently ended.

This $197,000 increase reflects a hike of $140,000 in the school district's guaranteed minimum fund allotment and $57,000 for transportation and special education purposes.

Of this $140,000, at least 75 per cent must go towards employee salaries and the remainder for incidental expenses. Most of the $57,000 transportation and special education increase will go for transportation purposes, Keithly said.

A total of 516 school districts in the state will receive more state aid under this new funding formula, with 37 districts expected to lose funds.

Keithly said the school board will work this month on adjusting salary schedules and figures in the district to reflect the additional funds which will be available.

Richardson: lower taxes, less government needed

By DAN POTTER
Staff Writer

Republican Lee Richardson contends his opponent in the special City Council election "promises Second Ward residents all he can get for them, but doesn't realize you have to take taxes from them to give something back."

Richardson, 37, 413 East Boonville, and Democrat Robert Morris, are vying for the empty Second Ward City Council seat created by the death of Councilman Stanley Holt April 28.

If the ballots favor Morris on Tuesday, Richardson claims, it means "more money out of the citizens' pockets."

Voters need to realize that Morris' promise "to get everything he can for the ward" means higher taxes, Richardson explained.

But Richardson believes the best thing for Sedalians is "less government and lower taxes."

Does that mean he might vote down improvements for his ward financed by matching funds? Richardson was asked.

"No, not things such as sewer work" and other needed im-

Morris: 'There are lot of problems over here'

By VICKI MARSH

"I don't want to be quoted as a politician. I'm just going for councilman. Right now I don't have any other political ambitions," said Robert Morris, Democratic candidate for Second Ward councilman.

"The Second Ward needs good representation no matter who goes up there. They don't want a 'do-nothing' councilman," Morris said.

Morris, who is making his first bid for a political office, will be running against Lee Richardson in a special Tuesday election to fill the council seat vacated by Democrat Stanley Holt, who died April 28. The term will be for the remainder of Holt's office, or until next April.

Morris, 46, and his wife, Joy, have lived at 805 North New York, in a house he built, for nearly 25 years. He has lived in the Second Ward for almost 38 years. They have two daughters, Joy Kay, 24, and Susan, 17.

Morris is employed as a painter by Borchers & Heimsouth Construction Co. and for nearly 25 years has been a member

Growing Older

Senior citizens and the right to work

By HAROLD BLUMENFELD

Growing older isn't a medical malady. It's a normal process that happens to everybody, beginning at the time of conception. And those who are lumped together in that large group of the aging population so affected, now make up the largest minority in the United States.

Today many in the younger generation think we who have passed our 65th birthdays have done more than grow older. To them we have grown old-old. It's so easy to take old things like hats and dresses, books and magazines, old dishes and old tires — and even old friendships — and get rid of them. But it isn't so easy to throw away old bodies onto a pile of discarded junk.

So we're tolerated because there's not much else to do with us. Such reasoning is demeaning to us. We've done many good things for the nation and we'd like to continue being productive.

Much has been said and written about "equal rights" for all citizens of the good old U.S.A. There must not be any restrictions which would prevent anyone from getting a job because of religion, color, race, sex, ethnic background, etc., as long as he or she is qualified to do the work.

But this large minority (we who are called the aging minority, Senior Citizens, and other names) do not have the right to go out and work — which we must do to keep up with the ever-rising cost of living. As a result many can do more than barely exist. That is, unless we want to face the probability of losing part of our Social Security benefits.

It's a continuing paradox. Not everyone who is covered by Social Security can or wants to work. But the person who does seek employment is gored on the horns of dilemma. If she or he earns more than $3,000 in 1977, Social Security payments will be decreased.

A young friend who resents having money taken out of his weekly paycheck for Social Security argued with me about restrictions which keep Senior Citizens from earning money by working.

Because, he said, if we could find someone who might hire us we would keep someone in the large army of the unemployed out of the job market. Yet if you look around among relatives, friends and neighbors you will find many younger people who are "moonlighting" by holding two jobs. And many younger women have given up doing housework just to keep from being bored.

Social Security isn't a fancy name for a dole or other form of a handout. It isn't charity. It's money we and our employers have paid out for many years, some since the inception of the program in 1935. If this money had been set aside as annuities, most of us might be better off financially today.

I can rationalize the reasons for younger people taking on a second job or the housewife leaving home to work because she wants to augment the family income. We also want to make more money.

I haven't seen any indication on the supermarket shelves that the price tag on a pound of coffee is lower for anyone who can show a Medicare card. The high price of almost everything requires extra money for everyone. It's discrimination and violation of equal rights if we can't go out and get some much-needed cash. (NEA)

At wit's end

Reformed saver

By ERMA BOMBECK

I am in the process of becoming a reformed saver.

It's hereditary, you know. In addition to an attic full of disposables, my grandmother was squirreled about by one current and four former husbands who were devoted to her. She could never discard anything.

My mother was just as bad. She had a stove drawer that had everything in it from a rolling pin with no handles to sheet music for a harpsichord, to the yellowed death notice of her iceman who died in 1937.

The symptoms began to show up in me when I was a small child. The neighbors called me "The Curb Junkie." Every Monday, I'd go up and down the street, picking my way through their trash for a lampshade, boxtop, flower pot, or a single boot.

By the time I was in high school, I had a collection of 36 pen wipers, three pictures of Sonja Henie and four of Ann Sheridan from old billfolds, a lunch box with Snow White and Seven Dwarfs, 15 composition notebooks, a Memory's Garden, a paperweight of Shirley Temple as Heidi, stubs from the circus, a splint from a first aid class, an invitation to Helen George's fifth birthday party, a tooth (possibly human) and 136 issues of Girl's Life.

By the time I was married a certain pattern had begun to develop.

I began to hoard things when no one was around. I wasn't just your average social collector anymore.

Then I began to lie about how much I was saving. I once told someone I only saved two or three milk cartons to make candles out of at Christmas when in reality I had 1500 cartons in the basement.

In time, my saving became more than I could handle and I became an embarrassment. (I'll never forget the time I was saving old cans and jerked one away from our minister's lips at a picnic.)

I told everyone I could stop saving anytime I wanted to, but when I tried to throw away 12 old grade cards, I knew I was lying to myself.

One afternoon, I was slipping two more twist ties into a box under the sink when I felt someone looking over my shoulder. It was my daughter. "What are you doing?" she asked.

"Nothing," I said, closing the drawer quickly.

"You're saving twist ties. Why, there must be thousands in there. What for?"

"I didn't want you to see me like this," I whimpered.

"Mom, don't you think I know how much you save? The old manila envelopes, the old calendars, the rubber bands from newspapers, the dried out felt tip pens..." She wiped her eyes with a tissue and threw it into the waste basket.

As I retrieved it and laundered it under the faucet, I assured her, "I can quit anytime I want to."

It's amazing what one lone chicken can do

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A neighbor of mine has been distributing, to her live-alone friends, a recipe for dividing one lone chicken so it makes three different dishes. Her sister, Silvia Lardner, sent her the directions and they worked so well she decided they ought to be shared.

Silvia Lardner is as innovative in her cooking as she has been in her long career. Years ago when she lived in California she was administrative assistant to a famous film producer and co-authored "I Lost My Girlish Laughter," a book about the Hollywood scene. Later she ran her own real estate firm and designed the interiors of model homes. Nowadays she lives in Scottsdale, Ariz., where she is a trouble-shooter for a one-man conglomerate. If you follow Silvia's way with one small chicken you'll be able to feed yourself (and even guests) for a number of meals. How's that for convenience and economy?

SILVIA LARDNER'S THREE-WAY CHICKEN

Have on hand a cut-up 2½-pound broiler-fryer to use for Chicken Soup, Chicken Salad and Garlic Chicken.

Chicken Soup: Save the thighs, drumsticks and wings for Garlic Chicken. Cook the liver and eat it. In a large saucepot bring to a boil the rest of the chicken including the heart and gizzard, 4 cups water, a medium onion sliced and separated into rings, a cup each of sliced or julienne carrots and celery, a chicken bouillon cube, a teaspoon each of salt and curry powder and two teaspoons of Worcestershire sauce; simmer, covered, until chicken is tender — about 40 minutes. With a slotted spoon, lift out chicken and reserve. To the broth and vegetables in the saucepot add a cup of fine egg noodles; bring to a boil and boil gently, uncovered, just until the noodles are tender. Meanwhile, remove the skin and bones from the chicken and discard. Dice the chicken meat (except for one half of the breast which will be used for the Chicken Salad) and return to the saucepot; heat. Serve garnished with minced scallions and/or parsley. Makes about 1½ quarts. Any soup not served right away may be frozen in desired size portions.

Chicken Salad: Dice the half of the chicken breast you saved and to it add to taste: minced celery, finely sliced scallion, garlic salt, pepper, tarragon or an herb mixture. Add enough mayonnaise to flavor and moisten but not so much that you cover up the taste of the chicken. Chill. Makes 1 or 2 servings, depending on what you serve with it. Garlic Chicken: For this use the reserved uncooked drumsticks, thighs and wings. In an electric or range-top skillet, heat a little oil and add the chicken, skin side down, and 12 (yes, 12) cloves of minced garlic; gently brown the chicken on one side; turn and stir the garlic. Sprinkle with pepper, about a teaspoon of a mild herb mixture and a little flour; turn the chicken to blend the flour into the oil.

Turn skin side up again and sprinkle with a little Japanese soy sauce; cover and cook gently until tender (about 40 minutes), checking occasionally to turn chicken if necessary.

Soap helps zipper slip

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I have a couple of Pet Peeves I must get off my chest. One is with those folks who kick their shoes off and they wind up in the middle of the floor for someone to trip over. It is all right to take your shoes off but do put the darn things under the sofa or a table. The same goes for large purses. Home is the most dangerous place there is and only because people are so stupid.

Then there are those folks who ask you to visit them and when you get there the TV is on and they leave it on. First they turn it down a little and when they cannot hear it turn it up again. How can people possibly "visit" under such circumstances? Perhaps people do not know how to hold a conversation any more since we have the "idiot tube." We have two sets but neither one is in the living room so we can give our full attention to guests who went to the trouble to come to see us. — LILLIAN.

DEAR POLLY — A good way to clean the glass doors of ovens is to dip a damp sponge or cloth in baking soda and use just as you would use scouring powder. — L.W.D.

DEAR POLLY — Do not throw away those old gloves but cut the fingers out and use them to cover the handles on your casement windows and there will be no more marks made by these handles on the window shades. Hold the finger on the handles with rubber bands, plastic ties or pipe cleaners. — MARIE B.

DEAR POLLY — My kitchen counter top has sharp corners that are just the right height for my grandchildren to crack their heads on as they play. I cut a clean sponge in two and taped a piece over each counter corner and have saved a lot of head bumps. — JUNE.

DEAR POLLY — When taking frozen pot pies out of the freezer I slip each pie out of its pan, grease the inside and put the pie back in and when cooked they are not stuck to the pan. — HELEN.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know how to make a zipper work easily. A friend of mine has a pair of fifteen inch boots and has to use the pliers to pull the zippers up and down. — DOROTHY.

DEAR DOROTHY — Rub a cake of soap on the inside of the zipper and it should work easier. Petroleum jelly may also be used. Both of these do work better on metal zippers but can be used on the nylon ones. There is a wax stick sold for this purpose that is very inexpensive. — POLLY.

County crews work to clean tornado debris

Two 10-man tornado clean-up crews are presently working in Pettis County, one north of the city limits and the other south of the city.

The crew working north of the city on the Albert Reine farm is expected to complete its work Monday and join the south crew on Tuesday, according to John Bluhm Jr., presiding judge of the County Court.

Persons south of the city are urged to contact Roger Brockman, foreman of the south crew, or the County Court, Bluhm said, if clean-up work is needed.

Many farmers are busy as this time of year, Bluhm said, and are not always available to talk to Brockman or his crew when they arrive. The south crew began working at the south city limits and is presently working in the Girl Scout Camp road area, Bluhm said.

The county crews, similar to those in the city, are being provided through a grant from the Missouri Office of Manpower Planning.

Castro discusses variety of topics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter is idealistic and intelligent. Richard Nixon is false and foolish. The Soviet Union is the freest country in the world. China is a good ally of the United States.

Cuban President Fidel Castro, holder of these opinions, is discussing subjects he hasn't mentioned publicly for years.

Despite his high opinion of Carter, Castro says differences between the United States and Cuba are so fundamental that he doubts the establishment of full diplomatic relations is likely during the remaining years of the President's current term.

While more optimistic about achievement of that goal if Carter is re-elected, Castro suggested that relations between the two countries have reached a plateau with the recent agreement on an exchange of diplomats at the sub-ambassadorial level.

Castro, Cuba's leader since he seized power on New Year's Day in 1959, offered his opinions to ABC news correspondent Barbara Walters in a wide-ranging interview. The interview, taped three weeks ago, was scheduled to be broadcast tonight.

Castro, recalling his first meeting with Nixon 18 years ago, said, "I could see he was a false man and politically speaking, foolish."

With Nixon in the White House, good relations with the United States were "absolutely impossible. Nixon always hated our country enormously and he was not only responsible for the Bay of Pigs but he was also closely related to counter-revolutionary elements and to rich families of Cuban origin," Castro said.

The Bay of Pigs invasion, in which Cuban exiles landed in Cuba in an attempt to overthrow Castro, was planned while Nixon was serving as Vice President in the Eisenhower administration. The invasion itself was carried out during the presidency of John F. Kennedy.

In proclaiming the Soviet Union "the freest of all countries," Castro said 20 million Russians sacrificed themselves in defense of their system during World War II. He wondered whether America would survive a similar test.

The interviewer tried unsuccessfully to draw the Cuban leader into a discussion about women in his life.

Castro, a divorced father of a 27-year-old son, allowed only that he is not married "in the bourgeois sense." He would not talk about his frequently reported friendship with Celia Sanchez, the first secretary of the Cuban Communist Party.

Miss Walters had better luck when she raised the question of political prisoners in Cuba, a subject Castro rarely comments on in public. There are "maybe two or three thousand" political prisoners in Cuba, down from a peak of "more than 15,000 in the early days of the revolution," he said. He attributed the decline to reduced counter-revolutionary activity against him.

Morris

of Painters Union Local 786.

When asked if he thought city employees should be unionized, Morris said, "I'd be a pretty poor union man if I didn't say so."

"Unions are so everyone can have fair representation. Collective bargaining should be on both sides. If they have proper arbitration, strikes should be eliminated," Morris said. He added that city employees should strike "only as a last resort."

Morris has been campaigning by going from door to door in the Second Ward.

"I've been trying to talk to everyone in the Second Ward personally. There are a lot of problems over here," he said.

Morris listed some of the priorities he would like to act upon if chosen councilman: The need for better fire protection in the Second Ward, more consideration given to the retired people (who comprise nearly 50 per cent of the ward's population, according to Morris), smoother streets at the railroad crossings and the need for new industries in Sedalia.

"We need industry that plans to stay — that pays wages high enough to pay pension plans and insure that the young people will stay here. Young people just getting married need better jobs that will provide better living conditions and wages," Morris said.

As for the need for better fire protection, Morris stated that fire trucks from the Central Fire Station on Hancock can be held up as much as 10 to 15 minutes by trains. The only other passage over the tracks is the viaduct at Main and Washington, which has a load limit of three tons.

"They can't go over the viaduct because they're too heavy. We don't have to have a fancy new fire station, but we do need fire protection," Morris said.

Morris, who was born and reared in Sedalia, believes the council is doing a "pretty good job," but that it needs to be used as a council and not as a "political football."

"I don't like the partisan politics and the bickering over little things. It looks bad to the public. Everyone should have their say."

"I'll tell them I'm not going to have any part of it," Morris said, referring to partisan politics. "They can go to it by themselves. It's not worth arguing about. Something like that you're not getting anything done anyway," he added.

"Now something bigger, I'll argue all night. If someone has a point to make, I'll listen and thank them for bringing it to my attention. No matter what your politics are, you should not look at people as Republicans or Democrats," Morris said.

"There are a few things I'd like to see get done out here. A lot of people have complained they haven't been represented the way they wanted to be. I think one of the main jobs of a councilman is to take care of his ward and the good of the whole of Sedalia. You need to update the city and help the private property owners, too."

"What I know about city government is what I've read in the paper and heard, but when I get in there, I'll make it my job to learn everything there is to know," Morris said.

"We're very happy to have such an outstanding line-up of performers," Runyan said. "The cooperation we've received from the artists and their managers leads us to believe that they, too, are looking forward to appearing at our Fair."

Besides the grandstand shows, the usual activities and attractions of the Fair will be offered, including quarter horse, Appaloosa and paint horse races, thoroughbred and pony harness racing, late model and super modified car racing, pony and draft horse pulls and the popular coon dog water races.

Richardson

provements, Richardson said.

But people need to realize matching funds are not all they are purported to be, Richardson said. "The state reaches into your right pocket and the federal government reaches into your left pocket to get taxes," which are used for matching funds by the federal government, he explained.

"Why not just leave the money here in the first place, lower the taxes and let the money stay here and be spent for what is needed, instead of sending it off to Washington and letting them tell us how to spend our money," Richardson emphasized.

"I won't oppose needed improvements financed by matching funds, but amusement type or circus type projects I will," he said. "We don't need murals in this city," Richardson said, referring to the $10,000 mural in the Municipal Building. "We need bread projects. There are people in this city who don't have enough meat on their table and murals don't feed them," he said.

This is Richardson's second try at the council. He lost to Second Ward Democrat Arthur Bethke in April, but said he is running again "because I really want the job."

Richardson has covered most of the ward in a door-to-door campaign and said he is getting strong support from many Second Ward voters.

Richardson and his wife have lived in Sedalia for five years. "We are Sedalians by choice," he said of their move here. They have nine children, four by their marriage and five foster children.

Besides supporting less government and lower taxes, if elected, Richardson told The Democrat-Capital he will fight against the closing of Mark Twain School.

"It's not just Mark Twain, but other elementary schools that are going to be done away with by regional planning," Richardson contends.

Regional planning is another move to bigger government, he said. The Show-Me Regional Planning Commission is made up of unelected officials "who want to abolish the local government for all practical purposes. That is illegal and unconstitutional," he claimed.

Richardson said he realizes that the Second Ward has been a stronghold for Democrats in the past.

"But that is because people think Democrats are for the working man and Republicans are for big business. That is a myth," Richardson said.

"I'm a Republican and I'm for the working man," he said.

Another issue with Richardson is recently-hired city sanitation inspector Lee Martin. "He's jumped the gun with several people in this ward by sending them letters threatening them with court action if they don't clean up their yards." Besides bringing a philosophy of lesser government to the council if elected, Richardson said he has more business experience than Morris.

Richardson was with a fast food restaurant for several years and said he understands the business side of things. He now is a clerk and driver for Boonslick Regional Library.

Over 14,000 women obtain legal abortions

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Abortions in Missouri were double the number reported in 1972 when Missouri women had to go to another state to obtain a legal abortion.

Garland Land, director of the Missouri Center for Health Statistics, said today more than 14,000 women obtained legal abortions in Missouri last year.

The proportion of pregnancies which end in abortion has grown rapidly since 1973 when abortions first became legal in Missouri, Land said. In 1976, one pregnancy in six was terminated by a legal abortion, compared to one in 12 four years earlier. Despite the increase in abortions, the number of births to unwed mothers continues to increase, Land said.

Young single women accounted for most of the abortions, Land said. Teenagers, 93 per cent of whom were unmarried, accounted for more than one-third of all abortions reported in Missouri in 1976 and another third were obtained by women between 20 and 24, of whom 75 per cent were single.

Abortions for married women also increased. Last year more than 3,750 married women obtained abortions in the state, Land said, an increase of more than 1,000 from 1975. Land said that this increase may indicate a growing tendency among married couples to use abortion to control family size.

Approximately 1,400 or 10 per cent of the Missouri women who obtained legal abortions in 1976 had had an abortion before, Land said.

for by the Senate, in an effort to assert greater control over the university's spending.

The House had merely lumped the entire $136 million in one account. But the negotiators reduced the Senate-approved amount for extension by nearly $400,000 shifting those funds to general university operations.

Other major provisions of the budget include a 2.5 per cent plus $300 a year increase for state workers with another 1 per cent for those supervisors who merit it; an increase of $52 million up to $480 million for state aid to public schools; $5 million for state aid to hospitals and more than $300,000 for the state Tax Commission to improve its evaluations of property assessment.

In the $946.9 million bill to fund most of the state agencies and elective offices, the lawmakers rejected Teasdale's recommendation that Republican Lt. Gov. William Phelps' staff be slashed to only a secretary and an administrative assistant. The lawmakers agreed to pick up state financing of two other employees in Phelps' office, who had been paid with federal funds in the past.

Teasdale gets insurance bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State regulation of credit life insurance cleared the Missouri General Assembly Wednesday night and was sent to the desk of Gov. Joseph Teasdale.

The bill's final form included compromises between the House and Senate, whose conferees met five times during the past several weeks trying to reach agreement on the measure.

That panel's compromise version, however, easily cleared both chambers Wednesday. It has been supported by Teasdale, so his signature seems likely.

Under the credit life bill, the state insurance director would be allowed to regulate commissions and premiums on credit life and disability insurance transactions in Missouri.

Premiums could be cut by as much as 25 per cent, insurance officials say, because some credit insurance agents now charge as much as 80 per cent commissions. A customer could purchase $100 worth of credit life insurance, for example, for 75 cents under the bill. The insurance division would have the power to change the rate in some cases.

Credit life and disability insurance is designed to insure that a loan will be repaid if the borrower dies or is disabled and cannot keep his financial commitment.

The bill which cleared the legislature Wednesday does not extend the regulation of credit insurance to out-of-state companies—a plan that was favored by the House. But it does include a House plan to define claims in such a way that rates would be kept lower.

Insurance officials generally lauded the legislature's action on the bill, which has failed in each of the last four legislative sessions.

But James Sullivan, director of the state Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing, warned insurance companies in the state against renegotiating contracts with their agents so as to be able to charge the unregulated rates for a longer period.

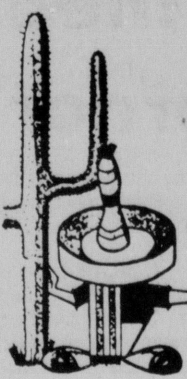

"Any attempt at policy renegotiation or increases in premiums would be a blatant circumvention of legislative intent," Sullivan said. "I can assure you that such an exercise of corporate irresponsibility will not go unchecked."

Under the measure as approved by the legislature, contracts insurance companies have with agents will be honored until the anniversary date of the contract, which is less than a year from the effective date of the act. At that time, the company would be subject to rates set under the measure, if it becomes law.

Welfare revision bill signed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph Teasdale signed into law Wednesday a federal compliance bill requiring Missouri to try to track down parents and force them to pay child support.

Teasdale said he was approving the bill mainly because the state could lose large amounts of federal welfare funds if it did not go along with the program.

The governor also signed a measure providing a National Guard reenlistment bonus, and a bill to eliminate rolling back mileage on automobiles. A bill outlawing the use of electronic or mechanical devices to cheat the telephone company on long distance charges was also signed.

The welfare revision bill was one of Teasdale's priorities. It had been debated to death on the floor of the Missouri Senate on the last night of the 1976 session.

Southwest Missouri Republicans Paul Bradshaw of Springfield and Richard Webster of Carthage disagreed with the form of the bill and talked about it until the mandatory midnight adjournment.

Governor also inks measure to stop odometer rollbacks

Missouri's failure to adopt a law complying with the federally mandated program would jeopardize the state's receipt of an estimated $80 million to $90 million in federal welfare funds.

While the main impetus for the bill was the creation of the plan to secure support payments from parents who have deserted their welfare children, the bill also makes a major change in the way the state provides welfare assistance.

Under the present system, any person meeting the standard test receives a flat grant for himself and his dependents. The new methods would call for the state Division of Family Services to determine the average need of a person or family in Missouri. Persons qualifying for welfare assistance would then have any income subtracted from that figure and receive the difference as assistance from the government.

The proposal to secure support from parents is intended ultimately to save the state money by reducing the burden of welfare families with absent parents.

State estimates placed the income from the program at more than $10 million a year for the state and more than $2 million for the counties.

Automobile mileage readings must be included on a car's title when the vehicle changes ownership under another bill signed by Teasdale. The measure includes penalty provisions, making conspiring to falsify car titles or to roll back odometers a misdemeanor on the first offense and a felony on the second.

Dealers found guilty of rolling back odometers under the law would be subject to revocation of their licenses.

Members of the Missouri National Guard will be eligible for a $100 reenlistment bonus for each year they add to their regular six-year tour of duty.

The bill has a maximum of $600 that a guardsman can receive and includes a provision stating that the bonus will no longer be paid if the draft is reinstated.

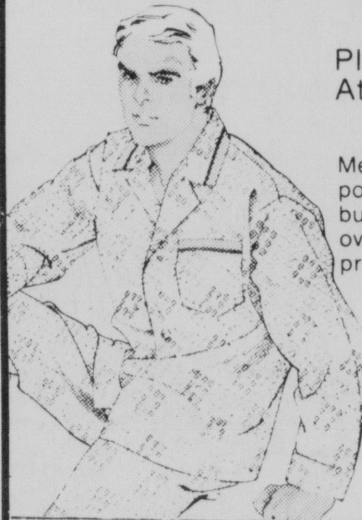

Teasdale also signed the bill repealing a restriction on the Missouri School Board Association from lobbying in support of their legislative priorities.

First real test is facing Teasdale over prison site

An Analysis
By TERRY GANEY
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The House-Senate confrontation over the type and location of a new prison has escalated, with Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale declaring he will not call a special legislative session if lawmakers cannot compromise.

And the governor, facing the first real test of his young administration, has let it be known he will not necessarily sign any prison measure that reaches his desk.

The House has approved Teasdale's continuation of the program to build a medium security prison in an urban area, while the Senate has voted funds toward the construction of a maximum security facility in central Missouri. A House-Senate conference committee, made up of five members of each chamber, has failed to break the deadlock over the prison issue.

The confrontation has gone further than simply corrections philosophy. It has become a question of pride, with members of both chambers realizing that any backing off from the earlier positions would risk losing face in the state capital.

The governor issued a statement Wednesday night, all but saying he'd veto a measure endorsing the Senate's position, declaring he would not necessarily sign anything the legislature sent to him on the prison. It was the strongest statement issued yet by Teasdale, who had earlier couched his endorsements of the House position with the assurances that he would approve any plan the legislature sent him to build a prison.

Asked if he would veto a maximum security prison, Teasdale said, "I don't think it will come to that. I believe the majority of the members of the Assembly believe in an urban site. I believe the tide has moved in that direction."

The governor's statement came as the legislature's self-imposed deadline for final consideration of appropriations bills passed at midnight Wednesday. The lawmakers can suspend the deadline with a majority vote in each chamber, as they have had to do the past two sessions.

If the lawmakers do not reach a compromise before the mandatory June 15 adjournment, Teasdale could call a special session to consider the prisons and the $125 million capital improvements appropriations bill in which that issue is included.

But Teasdale said Wednesday night there would be no special session.

"It is my hope the Senate-House conference committee and the legislature will decide to construct a new medium security prison in urban Missouri," Teasdale said. "However, should this conclusion not be reached and I find the sentiment of the legislature unchanged on this topic, I would see no point in calling a special session to consider this matter."

It's doubtful the lawmakers would adjourn without approving the capital improvements bill, since it provides funds for the maintenance of present state buildings and the construction of new ones during the fiscal year beginning July 1. Without it, projects ranging from new state office buildings in St. Louis and Springfield, to schools for the handicapped in outstate Missouri, would not be completed.

As one lawmaker put it, "Labor and the contractors are not going to let this bill die."

But members of the House-Senate conference committee did not appear close to a compromise on the issue of what kind of prison to build and where to put it.

The Senate has approved $21 million toward the eventual $34 million cost of a new, 500-inmate maximum security facility to be built on land already owned by the state Division of Corrections in mid-Missouri or near Springfield.

The House has voted $11 million for the continued planning and construction of a new 500-inmate medium security prison in an urban area, possibly the Birmingham Bottoms site near Liberty-Kansas City.

The Senate bases its argument for a maximum security installation on the belief that no urban community will accept it, and that continued efforts to come up with a site would only delay construction of a prison.

'Big truck' bill stays stalled in committee

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The "big truck" bill remained stalled in a House committee Wednesday with one week left in the legislative session.

Rep. Jay Russell, D-Florissant, chairman of the House Revenue and Economics Committee, has yet to consider the Senate-passed bill in committee. Russell said he offered the bill's primary backer in the House, Rep. William Fickle, D-Parkville, a vote on the measure which would increase truck weights and lengths.

But Fickle said Russell did not offer him a vote on the bill. "He told me he was going to but he didn't," Fickle said.

Action by the committee is needed to insure that the bill will have a chance to be considered on the House floor. Fickle said he didn't know what he would do if the committee fails to act, but he added, "I don't think it is dead."

The only other way Fickle could get the bill before the House would be to suspend the rules and take it up for special consideration. That would require 82 votes, which supporters say they have. Fickle was successful in a similar move to override another committee's rejection of the bill earlier this session.

Under the bill, trucks on Missouri highways could increase weights to 80,000 pounds and lengths to 60 feet. Backers of the bill say the larger trucks would save fuel and reduce transportation costs. Opponents claim the bigger, heavier trucks would be a safety hazard and that they would damage bridges and highways.

Judge grants five-day stay on jail order

PLATTE CITY, Mo. (AP) — U.S. District Judge John Oliver granted a five-day stay on an order he made last Friday to close down the Platte County jail because of existing health conditions at the facility.

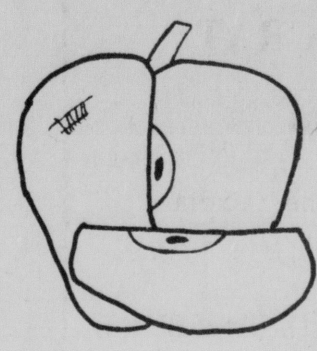

Oliver had said in his original order that the jail could be used only as a pre-trial detention center for seven days or less.

Also Wednesday, the judge granted the request of two inmates, whose names were not released, to remain in the Platte County lockup to be close to their families and attorneys. In their petition, they alleged that neighboring jails — to which they would presumably be moved — are worse than the one they're in.

One of the inmates is awaiting trial on charges of burglary and felonious assault and the other is charged with being an accessory before the fact of first-degree murder.

House Hatchet job is slap at public

The House Democratic majority, in a move blatantly at variance with the national interest, has voted to repeal the Hatch Act. Only a small part of the 38-year-old law was left intact following the 244-164 vote.

If the Senate follows suit, which appears likely at this point, President Carter will sign the bill and the doors will be flung open for the politicization of the 2.8 million members of the federal bureaucracy.

Federal workers would then be allowed to run for office and take an active part in partisan political campaigns. It takes little imagination to see where all of this will lead.

With savvy political operatives in the form of federal employees scattered throughout the country in positions of influence and power, the Democratic Party will overnight receive a tremendous boost. After all, it is liberals who constantly preach bigger and ever more powerful government, which has a strong appeal to this new pool of political workers.

Add to this the fact that public employe unions are growing stronger every day, and you have a prescription for one of the greatest mutual back-scratching arrangements in American political history.

This exercise in power politics has been depicted as an election "reform" that will aid the democratic process. Rather it will aid the Democratic Party, and at the expense of the average American taxpayer, who will be stuck with the bill for a more costly government — the inevitable result of scuttling the Hatch Act.

We are especially disappointed to see that our own legislator, Rep. Ike Skelton, was party to this sorry game.

Golf links for city?

Although it may be a long shot, we are glad to see the Park Board looking into the possibility of purchasing the Sedalia Country Club as a municipal recreation area. The idea came up at the board's meeting Tuesday, and members are currently investigating it.

It would be nice if this oasis of greenery could be preserved in some manner and not end up covered with asphalt. A quality public golf course also would be an asset to the city.

"It's agreed, then. We'll all send him our wives."

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Behind the famous beard and the flamboyant style, there is another Fidel Castro whom the world doesn't see.

The hidden Castro operates a worldwide intelligence network, directs a Vietnam-style intervention in Angola and practices imperialism on a global scale. He has transformed tiny Cuba into a world power, of course, with a $3.8 million daily subsidy from the Soviet Union. Without Soviet succor, he would have to close down his operation.

The establishment of diplomatic ties between Havana and Washington will also have its unseen side. With the exchange of diplomats will also come an exchange of spies.

Last year, we identified the Cuban spy chief in the United States as Julian Torres Rizo, who also doubles as secretary of Castro's United Nations delegation. Competent sources told us Rizo, while posing as a diplomat, has been developing contacts with radicals in this country.

Another top spy, who will join Castro's diplomatic mission in Washington unless our story stops her, is Alina Alayo Amaro. She is known inside Castro's spy agency, the DGI, by the code name "Adelfa." Her assignment, according to intelligence sources, is to penetrate the U.S. government. She is an expert on the U.S. Senate.

She was assigned, for example, as interpreter for Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., when he visited Cuba last April. McGovern told us he didn't know she was a spy. He recalled that she was extremely intelligent, with a great command of the English language.

Merry-go-round

The hidden Castro is not all smiles

Adelfa is a pleasant woman, about 34 years old, 5-foot-4, 120 pounds. The DGI has sent her on assignments to such diverse places as Canada, Czechoslovakia, England and Sweden. She also turned up on the Cuban delegation at the United Nations, where she concentrated on gathering information about U.S. senators. She has compiled detailed profiles on members of the Senate.

Fidel Castro functions, meanwhile, as an arm of the Kremlin. The Soviet KGB organized, trained and financed the DGI, which has become the KGB's eyes and ears in Latin America. Castro's troops in Cuba and Africa are paid and armed by the Soviet Union.

Castro sent a contingent of Cubans into Ethiopia immediately after the Marxist government expelled some 300 U.S. advisers. Cuban military advisers also helped to train the Katanga rebels who recently invaded Zaire.

Cubans reportedly are running guerrilla training camps for blacks who want to fight against Rhodesia and South Africa. The camps are located in Angola, Mozambique and Tanzania. Cuban military missions have also been reported in the Congo (Brazzaville), Equatorial Guinea, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Mozambique, Sierra Leone, Somalia and Tanzania.

For the Soviets, Castro is worth the $3.8 million a day he costs them. He is acceptable in the Third World, which would resist overt Soviet support. His Cubans have been able to infiltrate and subvert large tracts of the African continent, therefore, without the world uproar that would have been caused by direct Soviet intervention.

Yet those who have studied Castro closely say he doesn't regard himself as a puppet manipulated by Soviet financial strings. He apparently believes in his revolutionary role and feels a "moral obligation" to aid Communist movements. He views himself, say our sources, as a David who has stood up to the U.S. Goliath.

He seems to believe, therefore, that the Soviets are playing his game rather than the other way around.

Jimmy is a terror on court

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — As one who has been skeptical about Jimmy Carter from the beginning — nay, as one who has been critical of Jimmy Carter from the beginning — let me now cast a beam of good cheer in the gentleman's direction. He bids fair to be the greatest president of them all.

Kilpatrick

If this strikes my own constituents as heresy, let them make the most of it. Perhaps they have not heard of Jimmy Connors Carter, the tennis player. If my constituents were better informed, their doubts would vanish. Now that word is leaking out of Mr. Carter on the courts, no problem seems beyond solution. Nuclear arms, energy conservation, Southern Africa, Tip O'Neill — all these perplexities will be resolved. Hail to the Chief! He is plainly the man of the hour.

During the campaign period, we learned a good deal of Jimmy Carter the softball player. He hated to lose. In the daily games at Plains, he would protest the umpires' calls. He used to exhort his teammates to greater efforts. Mr. Carter always pitched for his side, and he pitched with a fierce concentration and a wicked sinker. It was an altogether impressive performance.

Baseball tells us something of a man's stamina and temper. Tennis tells us of his character. No game is more revealing. Thanks to the researches of Harry Kelly of the Chicago Tribune, we are gaining insights into the inner Carter. Mr. Kelly describes our leader as the Ilie Nastase of 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. My own inquiries confirm that encouraging appraisal.

The game of tennis, as every tennis player knows, is only in part a game of physical skill. The serve, the forehand, the backhand, the lob and volley — these are useful strokes, to be sure, but they are not that important. It is not by chance that the principal implement of tennis is known as the racket, for that is the nature of tennis. It is the preferred sport of con artists, carnival men, auto mechanics, university presidents and members of Congress. Especially when one passes 50 — Mr. Carter is now 52 — it is a game of guile.

A part of Mr. Carter's psychological approach was disclosed a week or so ago. On May 26, Hugh Carter, the President's cousin and accomplice, issued a formal staff memorandum: "This is just to remind you that you must have personal permission from the President to use the tennis court. This applies both when the President is in town and out of town."

A master stroke, was it not? The effect was instantly to reduce the President's prospective opponents to mere supplicants, to inferior beings, to players whose presence would be tolerated only to a point — to a point at which they began to win. The memorandum improved the President's game overnight.

Mr. Kelly, the indefatigable correspondent, tells us more. The President has begun to call foot faults on his opponents. A more devilish weapon could not be devised. The cruise missile is not its equal. In tennis, the person who is serving must keep his feet behind the base line, but in sociable tennis — even in small tournament tennis — foot faults generally are disregarded. Mr. Carter calls them. He calls them from his own end of the court. You are done for, Brezhnev; Give up, you North Koreans!

On inquiry, I am advised that the President also makes friendly suggestions to his opponents whenever they seem to be playing well. "Turn your racket face a little more on your backhand," he has been known to counsel. This destroys an opponent's backhand for the rest of the day. "Try a little more spin on your serve." Such advice, sincerely given, will produce a dozen double faults.

Gerald Ford, an amiable man, used to give an opponent a second chance. On a doubtful serve — a serve that could have been either in or out — Mr. Ford used to call, "Take another." Mr. Carter calls "out!" So, too, with doubtful line calls. When the President's shots are called out, he may walk the length of the court to inspect the mark left by the ball. This sort of thing can get absolutely unnerving.

Mr. Kelly reports one more presidential ploy. The disclosure should dissipate the last lingering clouds of uncertainty about the President's qualifications for his awesome job. Mr. Carter has been known to inquire solicitously, with the most evident concern, if his opponent "has a sore arm because he's hitting the ball funny." I thought I had invented that inquiry myself, seven years ago. Jimmy Carter, dear friends, is my kind of crook.

Recalling the great days of secretaries

WASHINGTON—It's not the big things but the little things about women's liberation that are throwing the entire country into a tailspin.

For example, there is a growing movement in the country among secretaries to no longer go out and get coffee for their bosses.

"That isn't my job," the more militant ladies are telling the men in the office.

A few years ago if a secretary said this, what she really meant was that she was quitting. But these days bosses do not know how to deal with the problem. It isn't the coffee but the breakdown in authority that has most executives terribly worried.

Simpson, who works for a large conglomerate and has responsibility for the success of one of its companies, told me all about it at lunch.

"It's a jungle out there," he said, referring to his office building. "What's the sense of being an executive if your secretary won't get you a cup of coffee when you need it?"

"What are secretaries for?" I said.

"When I was a junior executive my secretary not only went for coffee but served it in a cup, with a sugar bowl and a cream pitcher on a silver tray."

"Did she put the sugar in the coffee for you?" I asked, getting terribly excited.

"Of course, she did," he said. "One teaspoon, and just a dash of cream."

"Go on," I said holding my breath.

"Did I tell you about the Danish?"

"No," I said, gripping his arm. "Tell me about the Danish."

"Well, sometimes she would bring me a cheese Danish and I would want a cherry one instead. So I sent her down to exchange it. She always apologized for her gaffe and tried to make it up to me all day long."

"She should have," I told him. "A good secretary should know when her boss is in the mood for a cheese Danish or a cherry Danish. What else did she do for you?"

"There were days when I decided not to go out for lunch, so all I did was press the intercom button and tell her I wanted a bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwich on rye with mayonnaise on the side and a dill pickle and a large ice tea."

"And she went?"

"Like a flash. And she didn't just hand it to me in a bag. She put the sandwich on a plate, poured the iced tea in a glass and brought it all in with a napkin."

"What about the pickle?" My heart was beating twice as fast as usual.

"She had a separate little plate for the pickle."

"Boy, those were the days. They don't make women like that any more. Tell me about the afternoon."

Simpson smiled. "In the afternoon, around 3, without even asking, she brought me another cup of coffee, put it quietly on my desk and tiptoed out of the room."

"Oh, my gosh," I cried. "I wish I could have watched."

"It isn't like that any more," he said bitterly. "Now I have to bring up my own coffee and Danish in the morning, and if I want lunch I have to go down for it myself."

"But you're the boss!" I cried.

"Tell that to the women's libbers. All they think about is themselves. You know what the secretaries in my office have done? They have a coffee machine and the last person who uses the machine has to make a new pot of coffee, no matter what his title in the company is."

"It makes you sick," I said. "You could be making millions for the company and instead you're making coffee. Have you ever thought of firing a secretary because she refused to get you a Danish?"

"I did last year," he replied. "And she's suing me for $250,000."

Forester tells proper ways to cut, cure trees

Larry Lackamp, forester with the Missouri Department of Conservation, addressed a group of about 30 Sedalians Wednesday night in the council chambers of the Municipal Building about the proper pruning and shearing of tornado-damaged trees.

The department will donate about 2,000 trees next spring to residents in Sedalia, Higginsville and Pleasant Hill who lost trees due to the May 4 tornadoes.

"We will bring the trees to Sedalia and then the Environmental Quality Commission will see that the trees are distributed to people who have had damage to their trees," Lackamp said.

The trees will be chosen from the department's nursery and will probably consist of pin oak, sweet gum, river birch and other hardwood trees.

Lackamp, who illustrated comments with a slide presentation showing damaged trees, advised people who planned to replace their trees to plant hardwood trees and avoid the softer woods, such as soft maples, chinese elms and pines.

Good yard and shade trees to plant, according to Lackamp, include any of the oak family, hard maples, sweet gum, hickory and bald cypress.

"Always cut a branch at a 45 degree angle and then put a good coating of orange shellac on it (the pruning wound) to keep decaying bacteria and fungus from causing rot in the tree," Lackamp advised. He added that it's necessary to apply the shellac each year until the wound is healed.

Lackamp stated that when branches are left with ragged edges, moisture collects and causes rot disease in the tree. When trimming a tree, Lackamp stated the side branches should be left so that the tree will have a better shape when it grows out.

Also, when thinning trees, one should cut away branches that are growing in the opposite direction of the tree's normal growth or branches in a crowded area.

Lackamp also advised the use of a hand saw instead of a chainsaw for overhead pruning to achieve more control of the pruning wound.

Ron Scott, city director of planning and management, advised people who have lost trees because of the tornado to contact him. Their names, addresses, number of trees lost and type desired for replacement will be recorded and they will be contacted when the trees arrive.

Pruning points

Larry Lackamp, forester with the Missouri Department of Conservation, illustrates the proper methods of pruning trees. Lackamp spoke to a group of about 30 persons Wednesday night who had lost trees during the May 4 tornado. The department will donate 2,000 trees to residents here, in Higginsville and in Pleasant Hill next spring to replace tornado-damaged trees.

Wednesday highlights of legislative action

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Here are the highlights of action in the Missouri legislature on Wednesday.

SENATE

—Finally approved and sent to the governor the bills allocating the state's first $3 billion-a-year operating budget for the year beginning in July.

HOUSE

—Approved and sent to the governor proposed courtroom protection for rape victims.

—Approved and sent to the governor full state payment of foster child care, removing requirements for county contributions.

—Continued debate on the massive revision of the state's criminal code, turning its attention to law and order matters.

Jose Marti (1853-1895) was a leader in the Cuban independence movement against Spain.

Law, order provisions added to criminal code

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House has endorsed stiff sanctions for rape, possession of a gun by an ex-convict and sexual activity in massage parlors in its version of the proposed new state criminal code.

The law and order provisions were added to the Senate-passed version of the massive revision measure late Wednesday night, just before the House approved the modified bill, 136-17.

The proposed 328-page revision of the state's 142-year-old criminal code, initially the product of a special commission that began work in 1969, now goes back to the Senate. Differences between the House and Senate versions of the bill will be compromised by a joint legislative committee before the proposal comes before both houses for a final vote.

Although a number of House modifications to the Senate version make substantial changes in present criminal laws that could be objected to by negotiators from the upper chamber, the bill, unsuccessful in past sessions, is not expected to reach Gov. Joseph Teasdale, who has made it a priority.

Over-all, the bill attempts to update and systemize the state's criminal laws, setting out uniform penalties for similar types of crimes.

Among major provisions already agreed to by both houses are:

—Reduction of homosexual conduct from a felony with a minimum two-year prison term to a misdemeanor with a maximum fine of $1,000 and a year in jail.

—Reinstatement of a convicted felon's right to vote after he fully completes his court-ordered sentence.

—Intensified provisions concerning rape to give prosecutors a better chance of bringing charges.

—Requirements that stolen goods must be worth $150 rather than $50 before stealing becomes a felony.

Implementation of the new code is up in the air with the Senate calling for a September 1978 effective date and the House opting for a January 1979 date.

"We can't keep letting these people out on the street," said Willard Republican John Hoffman, who won approval of his plan for mandatory 30-year prison terms for rapists using dangerous weapons. Should the proposal win Senate approval, persons convicted under it would not be permitted parole or conditional release.

But while the House endorsed that proposal, it rejected a provision of Bonne Terre Democrat Ron Bockenkamp to eliminate any chance for parole or conditional release for persons convicted of second crime within three years.

"If all second offenders have to serve a full term without probation or parole," Affton Republican Anthony Dill successfully argued against the proposal, "we'll have to have a maximum or medium security institution in every county in this state."

Rep. Fred Dyer, R-St. Charles, won 86-63 approval of his proposal to subject any convicted felon to a maximum five-year prison term if he possesses a gun within five years of fully completing his sentence or being pardoned.

"About half the crimes are repeat offenders and offenders using firearms," Dyer said, and St. Louis Democrat Russell Egan added that the sanction was needed because "judges don't have the guts to sentence (these criminals) to longer terms."

The House also increased the proposed penalty for persons convicted of patronizing prostitutes to equal the penalty for prostitution itself: a maximum fine of $500 and six months in jail instead of a maximum fine of $300 and 15 days in jail.

"Until you start cracking down on their patrons, you'll never put an end to prostitution," said Rep. Jack Buechner, R-Rickwood.

Rep. Thomas Zych, D-St. Louis, contended his proposal to have massage parlors where sexual acts are conducted declared nuisances and put out of business would "literally wipe out every massage parlor in the state."

Concern over operations of "sex parlors" in massage parlors mounted earlier this session after a court ruling halted law enforcement action against massage parlors in the St. Charles area.

The House had earlier endorsed strict penalties for persons convicted of promoting child pornography.

MU must recognize Gay Lib, court rules

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The University of Missouri at Columbia must recognize Gay Lib, a homosexual rights group, as a campus organization, a federal appeals court has ruled.

In a decision announced Wednesday, the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the university's refusal to recognize Gay Lib violated members' constitutional rights to assembly and free speech.

School officials had refused to let the group use campus meeting facilities or apply for student activities funds.

District Judge John K. Regan, who voiced the only dissenting opinion, said the school had the right to protect itself and other students against "abnormality, illness and compulsive conduct."

Also criticizing the appeals court's ruling was Van Williams, president of the university's board of curators.

Williams said the decision would allow any group, including "blue-eyed people," to seek recognition as a student organization.

Beekeeping proposal a sticky issue, honey

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri may become a hive for sick bees if a bill regulating beekeepers becomes law, a state senator told his colleagues Wednesday night.

"When you have a sick bee, the state's going to pay for your sick bee," said Ladue Republican A. Clifford Jones. "You will be smuggling your sick bee into Missouri and then you sell it to the state and say, 'I've got a sick bee.'"

"Then, Mr. Beehive, the entomologist, goes and condemns the state bee—he does it even with a queen bee and doesn't even call her honey."

As Jones argued the state would have to help diseased bees produced by incompetent beekeepers, another senator asked:

"Doesn't it come down to the question: To be or not to be?"

"That is the question," Jones replied, and sat down as the measure cleared the upper chamber and went back to the House for final approval.

Royals blow one 9-8 to Minnesota

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Twins Manager Gene Mauch did some interesting things with his lineup Wednesday night—and they worked.

He started reserve catcher Glenn Borgmann, who lost his job last year when rookie Butch Wynegar joined the club. Borgmann responded by slamming a two-run homer in the ninth inning, tying the score 8-8.

Mauch then inserted Wynegar at third base, a position the youngster had not played since high school. Mauch had run out of infielders through his extensive use of pinch hitters and pinch runners.

After Borgmann's homer tied the score, Larry Hisle's homer in the 10th inning won it for the Twins, 9-8 over Kansas City, giving Minnesota a three-game lead in the American League West.

After the game, Royals Manager Whitey Herzog gave his opinion of the AL West race. "I'm not saying Minnesota won't win this division, but I do say the team that beats California will win it," claimed Herzog.

Hisle was mobbed by his teammates. In the clubhouse, however, he referred reporters to Borgmann, saying, "The real hero is over there."

"I've been waiting a long time for that," Borgmann said. "I haven't done much for two years, but maybe he (Mauch) will use me more now."

Royals shortstop Fred Patek hit his first homer of the season and only the 29th of his career. John Mayberry slammed a two-run homer in the sixth, giving the Royals an 8-6 lead. Mayberry also had homered in the first.

Larry Gura, 3-2, took the loss after giving up the late-inning homers to Hisle and Borgmann.

Mauch's beleaguered bullpen got a rest, except for Dave Johnson, 1-0, who got the victory by surrendering only two hits in the final four innings.

Major league batting leader Rod Carew had a single, double and triple, raising his average to .382, while Hisle built his American League-leading RBI total to 52.

Ace for Jerry

Former President Gerald Ford holds aloft the ball he used to score his first ever hole-in-one, as entertainer Danny Thomas signals "Number One" to the gallery. Ford got his ace using a five-iron on the 157-yard fifth hole at the Colonial Country Club during the pro-am event Wednesday that preceded the Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

San Diego victim of Card shutout

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis pitcher Eric Rasmussen believed he had firm command of his own destiny — except for a few sinking seconds.

Then, following a 50-minute rain delay in the seventh inning of a 3-0 Cardinals victory over the San Diego Padres, he was less than certain Wednesday night.

And, while en route to his staff-high fourth complete game for St. Louis, he fanned two and walked none to improve his control mark to 1.9 walks per nine-inning game.

Did Rasmussen's shutout, the fourth of his three-season National League career and second of the year, represent his best major league effort?

"It was one of them," he responded. "I've got four shutouts, two against this club. The game last year, when I shut out Cincinnati for 10 innings, was probably my best. (Fred) Norman shut us out for 10 innings, then we beat (Rawly) Eastwick in the 11th by 1-0."

Rasmussen, relying chiefly on recently cultivated additional movement with his fast ball, permitted the Padres two hits in only the sixth and final innings and was helped by two Cards double plays.

His teammates, meanwhile, broke through against left-hander Randy Jones, 4-6, for a run in the second inning and combed San Diego's 1976 NL Cy Young Award winner for two more in the fourth.

Ken Reitz' double over the first base bag and line-hugging triple, which rolled into foul territory in right field, keyed the two rallies, with Keith Hernandez also chipping in a triple.

"They were both sinkers on the outside of the plate," said Reitz, a right-handed hitter. "I didn't hit them off the end of my bat, but I didn't get much wood on them either."

A frustrated Jones, who underwent arm surgery last winter, could grumble only "it stinks" when considering his ill luck but Padres Manager Al Dark was not similarly upset.

"They were funny-looking things," said Dark of Reitz' hits, "but I'm so thankful his (Jones') arm's all right. He has to strengthen it more. That's the main thing."

Cards complete draft with eleven choices

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals included two Southern Illinois University players among their 11 additional selections Wednesday in major league baseball's summer draft.

Jim Reeves, 22, an outfielder from Murphysboro, Ill., was picked by the Cards in the 16th round of the draft's regular phase. Richard Murray, 21, a third baseman from O'Fallon, Ill., was selected 17th.

Chosen first by the Cards during the secondary phase Wednesday was James Glenn, 19, of Navasota, Tex., a right-handed hitting outfielder from Blinn Junior College in Brenham, Tex.

Besides Glenn, the Cards selected shortstop Greg Pastors of Connellsville, Pa., right-handed pitcher Mike Rostas of North Olmsted, Ohio, and outfielder-catcher Randy Bonner of Atlanta, Ga., in the secondary phase.

The draft's secondary phase is for players who had been selected previously by other clubs but had not signed professional contracts.

The Cards completed their selections through 24 rounds of the regular phase by choosing Charles Montgomery.

Montgomery City a CMBJL dropout

The ABA and WFL folded. Several NHL clubs are in trouble. Even some major league baseball teams are on shaky financial ground.

And now the Central Missouri Ban Johnson League has lost a team. But instead of lack of money, the problem in this case is lack of players.

Because they couldn't get enough warm bodies to field a team, Montgomery City has dropped out of the Eastern Division of the CMBJL.

The loss of the team leaves the Eastern loop with five teams, while the West has six. Columbia continues to be a wild card team. Had Montgomery City dropped out before schedules were complete, Columbia could have taken Montgomery City's spot in the East.

Instead, games already played by Montgomery City will not count in the standings, and teams will have an open date when they were scheduled to play Montgomery City.

Huntsville, winner of the CMBJL preseason tournament, is off to a fast start in regular season play.

Huntsville is 3-0 after the first week, nothing wins against Kirksville, Centralia and New Franklin.

Sedalia, which has played only one game, an 11-4 win over Jefferson City, is on top of the Western Division standings, followed by Boonville, Tipton and Marshall, all with 1-1 records.

Sedalia travels to New Franklin for a single game tonight, then hosts Boonville in a doubleheader starting at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at Liberty Park.

Sedalian take firsts in Ozark Empire track

SPRINGFIELD — Sedalia's Nick Hall had an outstanding day Wednesday, taking a first in the mile run and anchoring two first-place relay teams at the Springfield Ozark Empire Track and Field Meet.

Competing in the boys 15-16 age group, Hall won the mile with a time of 4:40.5.

In the two-mile relay, he teamed with Dwight Dabney, Alan Klover and Albert Clark to produce the winning time of 9:34.5.

The same four athletes were first again in the mile relay with a time of 4:03.4.

Dabney also scored an individual first, winning the 880-yard run in a time of 2:08.

The only other first-place finish for a Sedalia athlete came in the men's open division. Fred Knight won the high jump with a 5-11 effort.

In the girls 15-16 division, Paula Zimmerschied took three thirds — in the 100-yard dash with a time of 12.3, the 220-yard dash with a 28.7, and the long jump with a jump of 15-9½.

Lake water still bad for fishing

By ED VAUGHAN
Staff Writer

White bass and catfish are still the best bets for fishermen on the Lake of the Ozarks, with most areas still plagued by murky or muddy water.

The muddy water in the main channel of the lake, coupled with falling water levels the past couple of days, has reduced most fishing success to poor. The lake level was 55.0 on Wednesday, a drop of 1 foot from Monday.

TURKEY — COLE CAMP CREEKS: White bass fair to good in Turkey Creek, with best results on minnows fished 4 to 5 feet deep about 15 feet out from the rock cliffs. All other species poor. Water muddy.

White bass also fair to good in Cole Camp Creek, with best results on white jigs with red heads. Crappie, mostly little ones in the beds, with better results out away from the beds, only rated fair. Walleye, bass and catfish all rated poor to fair. Water murky, but clearing.

ZORA — IVY BEND: Water murky to muddy, with crappie only fair. Largemouth bass the best bet, with small Hoola Poppers producing well near weed beds in the backs of coves at night. White bass fair in the backs of coves, where the water is less murky. Catfish rated fair to good on trotlines baited with shad or nightcrawlers.

GRAVOIS MILLS: Most white bass anglers still catching their limits of fish weighing 2-3 pounds on 1/4 and 1/2-ounce black jigs fished in deep water over gravel bars at night. Sonars and Gay Blades fished deep also working well. Some walleye and bass being caught at night. Catfish and crappie both rated poor to fair. Water clear, with night fishing producing best results for all species.

SUNRISE BEACH: Water muddy, with catfish the best bet on Bee-Jay- or shad-baited trotlines. All other species poor.

NIANGUA: White bass the best bet here also, with mayflies (if available) the best bait. Bill Parker and Ted Matthews of Lake Park Marina report mayflies have hatched a couple of times recently and they are the best bait for white bass. Cobwebs around docks or bluffs trap the insects following a hatch, they report, and 8-10 strung on a medium-sized hook and fished on the bottom prove irresistible to the whites. Other normal lures for white bass produce also, they said, but not nearly as well as the mayflies, which hatch only every few days. Water clear, all other species poor to fair.

POMME DE TERRE: Night producing the best results on crappie, being taken on minnows fished about 20 feet deep. White bass rated fair to good. Best results on small surface lures, spinners and jigs fished near surfacing schools in the evening hours. Trolling with jig and spinner combinations in white or yellow also producing during daytime. Largemouth bass fair to good on plastic worms fished in the tree tops and on tandem spins and topwater lures fished near moss beds and brushy areas. Water clear.

Quality trout areas

The Conservation Commission has established three quality trout fishing areas on Missouri rivers, including the North Fork, Meramec and Current.

All three will have a minimum length limit of 15 inches on either rainbow or brown trout and a daily limit of three.

Effective in 1978, the areas are: the Current River from Montauk State Park to Cedar Grove, with gigging on that stretch of river also not allowed; the North Fork River and its tributaries; and the Meramec River from Highway 8 Bridge to Scott's Ford.

Jockey's mind set on bank not glory

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Cruguet, who has ridden top horses on both sides of the Atlantic but who has ridden in a shadow in the area of public attention, says he is not concerned about any celebrity status he might achieve because of Seattle Slew.

"Ten years ago maybe," the Frenchman said Wednesday morning at Belmont Park, the site of Seattle Slew's bid for the Triple Crown which will come Saturday in the Belmont Stakes.

"When you're 20 you look for the glory. When you're past 30 you forget the glory. You like it but you look for the bank."

But should Seattle Slew become the first unbeaten Triple Crown champion, a feat he is a strong favorite to accomplish, then Cruguet automatically will be racing's man of the hour.

The Slew was to be entered today along with an expected six opponents including Run Dusty Run, second in the Kentucky Derby and third in the Preakness; Sanhedrin, third in the Preakness, and Iron Constitution, second in the Preakness, for the $150,000-added Belmont which will go off at 5:38 p.m. EDT.

The CBS telecast of the 109th running of the 1 1/2-mile classic will be from 5-6 p.m. Cruguet, who has been aboard Seattle Slew for all eight of his victories, has known major disappointments in his career.

In 1971 he was headed for the Derby as the rider of Hoist the Flag, the early favorite to win that famed race. But while working out for the Gotham Stakes, a Derby prep, Hoist the Flag broke a leg and never raced again, although he was saved for stud.

In 1972 Cruguet was riding San San, a top 3-year-old French filly who was headed for the renewed Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe. A week before the Arc, Cruguet was injured in a spill involving another horse and had to watch as the filly won the Arc.

Is sports victim of ingratitude?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

What can be more insidious than man's ingratitude to man?

"It's a question I have to ask myself every day," says Bill Daniels, Denver communications pioneer who took a $4 million bath in a naive venture into big time professional sports — particularly basketball and boxing.

"I am not bitter, just disillusioned," added the energetic head of Daniels Properties, Inc., which has a network of cable television subscribers in 14 cities and five states. "I learned a lesson. I found that faith and trust are scarce commodities in today's inflated sports market."

"Most athletes are out for everything they can get. Few have a compunction about keeping their word. Contracts and understandings are just things made to wiggle out of."

"For me, it has been a shattering experience."

The experience mainly encompassed the Utah Stars of the now defunct American Basketball Association and two ranking heavyweights, ex-convict Ron Lyle and the recently beaten "white hope," Duane Bobick.

"Lyle was like a brother to me," Daniels said. "I took an interest in him while he was still in prison. He had great potential as a fighter. I saw possibilities of rehabilitating him on the strength of his boxing ability."

"I used all the influence I had to get him pardoned by the governor of Colorado. I promised him a shot at the title. I fulfilled that promise. Ron had a lead on Muhammad Ali on every official card until he got careless in the 11th round and was knocked out."

"Then one day he came up to me and said he wanted out of our contract. It was like a son saying, 'Well, dad, I don't like you any more. I am going away.'"

The experience with Bobick was every bit as disheartening, Daniels said.

"Before the 1972 Olympics, everybody was promising Duane a Cadillac and $200,000 bonus to sign after the Games," he related. "They were sure he would win and be a big pro drawing card. But he lost and, when he returned home, he found that all those fancy offers had disappeared. Nobody wanted to talk to him."

"That's when I signed him. I gave him good training and coaching, paying him $1,000 a month expenses. Then, after his 24th fight, he came to me and said he wanted to go to Joe Frazier."

"I figure I lost $70,000 on Bobick alone."

The communications executive took his biggest bath in the old ABA, a venture that he figures cost him close to $4 million.

"The Stars were in the cellar some 17 or 18 games out of first place in 1970 when I brought the franchise from Los Angeles to Utah," he said. "We made the playoffs. Then we set a first-year attendance record for pro basketball."

"From there, we went on to win the ABA championship. I thought something was wrong when our star, Bill Sharman, failed to attend the victory party. Two weeks later he advised us he was leaving the team to join the Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA."

"The ethical structure of sports is decaying," Daniels insisted. "The courts haven't made a single favorable decision to the owners. They're killing pro sports. A player's word means nothing."

Opening lead - Q ♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Old Man Z who used to play the dummy in the auction bridge columns of the roaring '20s was back at the club again.

He won the heart lead with his ace and remarked: "This looks like a Sidney Lenz hand of 1922. If everything is right I will make six, but undoubtedly everything is wrong and I had best try to insure my contract."

He promptly led a club to dummy's ace and proceeded to draw three rounds of trumps. Then he led his jack of clubs!

West couldn't do himself any good by ruffing so he chucked a diamond. Z was in dummy with the king of clubs and led back the 10. Now East had a Hobson's choice. If he played his queen, South would eventually get to discard a losing diamond on the nine of clubs; if he ducked, South wouldn't lose a club trick. Z was sure of 10 tricks and a top score.

Note that if Z had not played that club at trick two he would not have been able to make the contract.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader asks what you respond to a Blackwood four notrump when you have one ace and are void of a suit.

This is a very sticky question since it depends on partnership agreement. The straight Blackwood rule is to just bid five diamonds to show one ace, but most experts respond six diamonds if they think that their void will be a valuable one.

Under no circumstances do they respond five hearts to show two aces.

Baby brother causes problem

Dear Ann: Don't tell me I'm crazy. I already know it. What I need is help. All names in this mixed-up mess are fictitious.

My husband, Dan, and I are both 30. We've been married nine years and he is a college prof. I'm doing graduate work.

Two years ago, Dan's brother, Ron (age 18, 6-2, 195 lbs. and gorgeous), came to live with us while attending college.

My fondness for Ron and his responses to my "sisterly" affection blossomed into a very active sexual affair. At first I was rocked by my adolescent behavior but very soon I had to admit that Ron is a much better lover than my husband.

I now realize this dynamite-laden affair has got to stop before serious damage is done. But I've run into an unexpected problem. Ron insists we keep on till he finishes school, which is two years away. He promised to continue "light dating" for appearances' sake.

It would be impossible to end this affair so long as Ron remains under this roof. My problem is what to tell Dan. Why do I want his brother out of the house? The thought that Ron might squeal is not an impossibility.

Please help. — Nervous.

Dear Ner: Tell Dan two years of playing substitute mama for his brother is enough and you feel the need for privacy. Moreover, Ron, at age 20, should learn to manage his own laundry, meals, etc., as a matter of independence.

If the kid squeals, he is a total rat. Put him out of the house as soon as possible and take your chances.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the wife of a physician who needs one of your best answers. I am not the only one with this problem, so you would be helping a great many people if you responded in print.

I can't count the numbers of friends and relatives who have phoned and asked me what to do about an ache or a pain — or worse yet, asked me to talk to my husband and get his opinion of their medical problem.

Why don't supposedly intelligent people understand: (1) A doctor's wife is not qualified to give medical advice. (2) No doctor can make an adequate diagnosis based on facts obtained from an intermediary.

I hate to be impolite but I don't know what to say to these people. Can you suggest something? — M.D.'s Wife In Casper

Dear Wife: Why don't you clip this column, keep it near the phone and read from it?

The only thing you might add is the suggestion that he or she call the doctor's office and make an appointment.

Dear Ann: Please give "Ugh" some better advice... she's the lady who found the worm in her food and hates to think of eating at Mary's house again.

As I see it, she has three choices: (1) Take her own lunch and tell the hostess the truth. (2) Take her own lunch and say she's on a special diet. (3) Eat with her eyes closed. — Good Card Players Are Hard To Find

Dear Good: Sorry, I still think my answer was better than any of yours. She should eat at home or put on her glasses and eat VERY CAREFULLY.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. c. 1977 Field Enterprises, Inc.
